

WOMEN AIM TO SIT ON BENCH

One Feminine Judge for Every State Supreme Court Predicted

By NEA Service
CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 6.—"I am but the forerunner of what is bound to come in every state—a woman member of the supreme court. With women comprising more than half the population, it is high time they were taking action to have legislation affecting them reviewed from a woman's viewpoint."

Thus does Florence E. Allen, who may be the first woman to be elected to a state supreme court, summarize Miss Allen is a candidate for a seat on the Ohio supreme court bench. Miss Allen did not make her campaign on a platform advocating a woman for supreme judge; she ran as a non-partisan on her record as a judge of the Common Pleas court here. Her record for quick handling of cases, sympathetic interest in litigation before her, and low proportion of reversals, won her not only women's support, but followings of both Democrats and Republicans.

First woman to be a Common Pleas court judge, Miss Allen also was the first woman judge to try a murder case. She has tried a half dozen in the last two years. In only one was her procedure reversed—and that for an action of the sheriff.

WINS FIGHT FOR WOMEN
Quiet of manner, low of voice, Miss Allen has made the law her calling since she was admitted to the bar in 1919. Her experience in that time has covered a wide variety of cases.

She is credited with winning the fight of the East Cleveland women for the vote in 1916, a fight that went through the East Cleveland charter commission hearings and up to the supreme court. She represented the union street railway employees of Cleveland as arbitrator in the 1918 wage dispute.

As the first woman to appear before the National Labor Board, Judge Allen represented the women street car conductors. She is credited with making the best presentation of a case ever given before the board.

In 1919, Miss Allen was chosen assistant county prosecutor here. A year later, she was elected judge of the Common Pleas court by the greatest vote ever given here for any candidate for that office. Thereby she became the first woman ever to sit as a judge in a court of general legislation, and has since worked in law, equity, civil and criminal cases.

WANTS WOMEN JUDGES
"There is no reason why a woman who has made a thorough study of the law should not be qualified to become a trial judge," says Miss Allen. "There is every reason, too, why a woman should be a member of the supreme court of each state."

"Through its decisions to establish constitutionality of new laws, the state supreme court assumes a quasi-legislative function. As a result of awakened women's organizations and women legislators, many new laws are being made affecting women. It is certainly fitting that a woman's viewpoint should be included in the deliberations on these and other laws affecting women and children, when they are up for test of their constitutionality."

GHOST MAKES LOVE TRIANGLE

Wife Asserts Spectre of Former Sweetheart Lures Husband

By NEA Service
CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Forming the third corner of an "eternal triangle" here is the ghost of a former sweetheart.

The spectral figure, claims the wife in the case, has come back to earth and is luring her husband's love away.

The couple has separated, and on the strength of her story of spiritual lure, Mrs. Bertha Lahm is petitioning the courts for separate maintenance from Fred Lahm, alleged host to the spirit flame.

Under oath Mrs. Lahm declares their married life has never been happy since the death of her first husband, a man named Evelyn, whom the husband admits he loved before her death eight years ago.

Lahm's belief in the spirit world came to him a few years ago, says Mrs. Lahm. Ever since, he has been covering the house with pictures of Evelyn, she says.

Conditions in the Lahm household became more and more serious until recently, the wife says, her husband held daily seances with his ghostly visitor. He sought advice from the spirit. Mrs. Lahm charges, even neglected her and their child, also named Evelyn, to be with the spirit of his former love.

"I simply couldn't stand it any longer," said Mrs. Lahm, who has taken her daughter to her mother's house to live.

Nothing could be done in the household, she said, unless Lahm first consulted the spirit. It got so, she alleges, Lahm went to other women whose name was Evelyn, on the pretext that the spirit had guided him to them.

All these circumstances led Mrs. Lahm to seek divorce in the court. Lahm denies her charges. "None of it is true," he says.

That is as far as he will go, however, in explaining the alleged presence of the spirit of his former sweetheart.

DR. NANSEN DROPS ORIENT RELIEF PLAN

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 6.—Owing to a deadlock in the negotiations between Dr. Fridtjof Nansen and Hamid Bey on the question of relief work in Asia Minor, Dr. Nansen has left for Athens. The deadlock is said to have been due to impossible conditions laid down by the Ankara government's representatives.

Mustapha Kemal Pasha telegraphed Dr. Nansen prior to his departure that he would be unable to meet him as he was detained in Ankara on important business there.

CURING HER OF WOMAN-SHYNESS

BY KITCHEN PIXLEY.
(Our Own Special Correspondent)

MOGADOCHE, Nov. 4.—Society hereabouts, including the new Mastodon Brass Band, is sure in a jiggle-woggle.

Ye see, yesterday a feller from over Huntville way comes along and tells Sister Belinda Pitts what he calls a new strain of Holstein cow. I guess it was. Anyhow, I never seen no other cow with longer horns, wickeder eyes and so much hair on her spine. Well, when Miss Pitts undertook to milk the critter, last eve, she found she was woman-shy. The beast laid all ways been milked by men, and just wouldn't hold still, no matter what Miss Pitts said of done. Well, while Miss Pitts was fidgetin' about, along comes old Constable Seth Beardsley a-struttin' down the boulevard behind his new officer's star, tryin' his best to uphold the dignity of the law and about a quart of his own home brew. Miss Pitts explains matters, and nothing would do but Seth must educate that cow against bein' woman-shy. So Miss Pitts puts a Mother Hubbard and a calico bonnet on Seth and he goes slidin' up to that new breed Holstein purrin', "Sukey! Good Sukey!" in her sort of breakin' womanhood in on her gradual.

I hadn't no notion what that Holstein really was shy of. Anyhow, it wasn't of disguised old fool constables, and the way she ended t'other end to and flashed them 18-inch horns on Seth, was a real sort of breakin' slow mentally on some points, but he looked onct into those bovine eyes, saw them long black bristles raisin' on the critter's back and stroked it for the shag-bark hickory in the middle of the lot. He made a darned good run of it, too, considerin' his Mother Hubbard handicap, but he hadn't got more'n five feet up that tree when the new breed Holstein arrived. She just stuck one horn through that female garment and under Seth's gaiters where they crossed, and pried back. What she done to Seth's raiment is unfit for publication, but Seth was glad to keep right on up, lookin' like a plucked goslin'.

About now our new Mastodon Brass Band comes marchin' down the boulevard for its first public concert in Town Hall. "Hot Time" may be good to soothe some savage beasts, but it hadn't no such effect on new breed Holstein. Miss Pitts, woman-shy cow and the Mastodons sighted each other about the same time. In two minutes you coulda picked a bombast or a flagellate or a drummer boy out of any ucalypso at that boulevard. No band will stand before a new breed Holstein charged a mile a minute with a Mother Hubbard on one horn and remnants of a pair of pants on the other. All of them Mastodons took refuge early, "cep'n' Postmaster Abadiab P. Watts, who had to keep his eyes shut mostly while blowin' "Hot Time" out of the E-flat cornet. Abadiab, when he finally sees what's comin', thinks he can make First church, where Wednesday night prayer meetin' is just settin' in. But Abadiab ain't no judge of speed and distance, and Miss Pitts' new breed Holstein gets him in a corner of the church entrance. She couldn't horn him, but she butted him about 10 times in 10 seconds, pretty punctual, and there was the meetin' inside singin' "O, Happy Day! O, Happy Day!" and our worthy postmaster outside yellin' "Hellfire! Hellfire!" and such every time the Holstein rammed him.

Well Josh Jackson's bulldog finally worried the cow off Abadiab, but First church has served notice that Washington's goin' to hear what that E-flat postmaster expressed at its very entrance.

Mary Nordean, 13, of Pleasant View, who was severely injured when struck by an automobile at Pleasant View Friday evening, was reported slightly improved today at the Bee hospital. The girl is still unconscious at times, the report said, but her condition is such that recovery is looked for.

Examination so far has failed to show definite signs of fracture of the skull, it was said, but it is still believed that a fracture exists, although it has failed to show in X-ray photographs.

Renna Nordean, 9 years of age, sister of Mary Nordean, is recovering from a fractured leg and body cuts.
